Dear Dr. Lederberg:

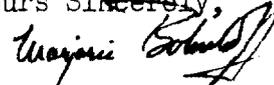

Thank you for your letter of 11 April, which arrived while I was spending a few days at home for a short rest.

I am delighted to hear that you are having success in crossing some of our mouse strains with K<sub>12</sub>. We shall certainly keep sending as many as can be isolated.

Regarding the problem of continuing comparative identifications, I would rather wait to discuss the situation with Dr. Miller. He is in Arizona for a week to recover from an annoying cough, which hung-on for a month.

I shall be able to send another batch of strains of E. coli in a week or so. I understand you would also like strains of para-coli, and shall try to include a few of them.

Yours Sincerely,

Marjorie Bohnhoff
